

Dear Clinton Citizens:

August 24, 2012

The Clinton Cultural Council is surveying local residents for public feedback about the guidelines used to award cultural grants which is gathered every three years in order to be in compliance with the State.

Because local cultural council members are responsible for distributing public dollars, councils need to solicit and collect local public opinion about how to best distribute funds. Most councils receive more requests than can be funded, and strong guidelines based on public feedback can help guide grant making decisions. Knowledge of resources, interests, and needs can help councils make difficult decisions and encourage community-responsive proposals.
